

RATIONAL

In recent times, the treatment of urological neoplasms has undergone an important evolution due to already existing treatments being shaped into lines of therapy for increasingly precocious stages of disease and the offer of new surgical and radiotherapy treatments and molecules, as well as new combinations of different treatments. The meeting provides insight into integrated and multidisciplinary therapeutic strategies, related to urological neoplasms (prostate carcinoma, kidney carcinoma, urothelial carcinoma, penile carcinoma, testicular neoplasms), with respect to the development of therapeutic knowledge and the integration of new therapies that are becoming available. The congress aims to translate both the guidelines and clinical trials results into daily practice, through expert to expert discussion and sharing.
